④ boulder, co Sommelier Bobby Stuckey and chef Lachlan Mackinnon-Patterson, both French Laundry alums, have combined their talents to open Frasca, a neighborhood restaurant that pays homage to the cuisine and culture of Friuli, Italy. The welcoming, unpretentious dining room—with conversation-friendly acoustics—by Denver’s Semple Brown Design serves as a perfect backdrop for the tantalizing cuisine. Main-course offerings include mint-and-brioche-crust local lamb leg with warm olive oil-marinated tomatoes. Entrées from $16 to $28 (1738 Pearl St.; 303/442-6966, frascafoodandwine.com).
